'Russ Rulers Fear People'

Desire for Freedom Is Strong—Dulles

New York (AP)—Allen W. Dulles, director of the Central Intelligence Agency, said Tuesday night the force most feared by Russia's rulers is the desire of their own people for freedom.

The desire of all men to be free, Mr. Dulles said in a prepared address at the twenty-third annual New York Herald Tribune Forum, "haunts the rulers of the Kremlin today."

The democracies, he said, "can and must exploit" this fear, which he termed the "Achilles heel" of the Communist dictatorship.

He told the forum that in the past five years 1,800,000 persons fled to freedom from Soviet East Germany and 250 thousand recently chose to "leave Ho Chi Minh's paradise" in Communist Vietnam.

"Compared with all those who have sought freedom in the West, the few frustrated failures who have defected to the East are relatively insignificant," he said.
